DIES WHILE ON A RUN TO SHERIFF

WAS ON WAY TO NOTIFY
SHERIFF OF ESCAPE OF PRISONER

Greenville, Oct. 6.—Sometime between 12 and 1 o'clock last night, a negro confined in the jail here, made his escape from the upper story of the jail after digging his way through the brick wall. William Kirksey, the jailer, heard him as he slid down the wall, and ran out to try to catch him, but was too late. Mr. Kirksey then took up his position outside of the jail to prevent the other three confined in the same cell from escaping. The night watchman, Mr. Brad B. Wilson, coming up at that time, he sent him after the sheriff, who came and transferred the prisoners to another cell. Carter has not been caught yet, although it is not thought that he can remain at large long. He is charged with burglary.

Called For Help.

After Mr. Wilson left the jail, he ran on down the street toward the station and when he had gone some two blocks, he was heard calling for help. When he got to the ice factory, several of the people who had heard him, caught him and found that he was very sick. A doctor was immediately telephoned, for and all done that could be until the physician came, but just as the doctor arrived Mr. Wilson died. His death was caused from a leaky valve in his heart, brought on, doubtless by his run to the home of the sheriff, Mr. Watson. The whole time since he first realized that he was ill and began running and calling for help until the time that he died was probably only about twenty minutes and while no one around him realized that he was in a dying condition, all that could be done for him was done.

Mr. Wilson was a man about 70 years of age and for the past five or six years had been night watchman for the city. He had just begun another term on the first of the month, when the new council and mayor took office. He was an elder in the Primitive Baptist church and was serving a charge some distance from Greenville in the country, returning Sunday afternoon from a day with his congregation there.

MAIL SERVICE ON THE ELBA BRANCH

BEGINNING MONDAY MAIL
CLERK WILL COME ON INTO DOTHAN

The department has authorized the extension of service in trains 62 and 63, Waterford to Dothan, Ala., increasing the distance 17.19 miles, changing destination to the Dothan and Elba R. P. O. and effective October 10th.

Service in train 62 will be extended through to Dothan, returning in train 63 by postal clerk, performing service daily except Sunday.

Clerk in train 62 will make up pouch daily except Sunday for Dothan and will receive a pouch from Dothan in train 63.

COMMANDERY MEETING TONIGHT

Every member of Dothan Commandery No. 25, Knights Templar is requested to meet promptly at 7 o'clock to night in the Masonic Hall for work.

MONEY ORDER BUSINESS

For the last two weeks of September the Dothan postoffice issued 500 money orders, amounting to $2,780, and paid 449 money orders that totaled $5,830. From this it will be seen that much more money was paid out by the office here than was received for the two weeks, which is probably due to the collections from various sources coming in.

When the office has to pay out more money than it receives, it is allowed to draw a warrant on the United States Treasury for the amount.

IS THE LID ON?

It was reported that two blind tigers were run in this morning, or last night, and such conduct is causing a good deal of inquiries, as to whether the lid is on or not.

If the mayor will have his men make a special effort to get up some evidence, and then stick in a $100 fine where it will do the most good, he will get the thanks of at least 90 per cent of the people of this town, and will enrich the town treasury in an uncommon manner.

S. S. RALLY AND PROMOTION DAY

SUNDAY SCHOOL OF FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH WILL HAVE BIG DAY

Sunday is Rally and Promotion day at the First Baptist Sunday School and such an outpouring of Baptists is expected as has not been seen in some time.

Great things are being planned for the Sunday School this year. All the members of the church realize the importance of this work and are going to give it their hearty co-operation.

In order to reach every member of the church and as many friends as possible, the following invitation will be spread broad cast:

If this invitation reaches you, let it lead you to the First Baptist Sunday School. We hope to have a great day. By coming you will see the children promoted, and graduated from one department to another, and hear soul-stirring music sung by everybody. The school will be attractively decorated for the occasion. We want to see every deacon, officer, teacher, scholar, former member, parent, friend, church member, well wisher, brother, young man and boy, young lady and girl, father and mother there.

Fraternally yours,
Teachers and Officers,
First Baptist S. S.

ONE DAY MORE

Of The Following Special Bargains

Our sale beginning Sept. 24, has proven a decided success so far. We have the goods we advertised and are selling them as advertised. The people have learned that we do just what we say we will, consequently they know what to expect when we advertise a "SALE."

We are letting goods go at such unreasonable prices that it staggers the belief the most skeptical—not a dissatisfied customer has shown up, which proves conclusively that each customer is satisfied.

I have no apologies to make to my competitors for these prices. As advertised before, money is what we need, and need it now, and have put on these unreasonable prices, including bargain-giving for not other reason than to raise a big lot of money in a short time.

Our goods are not shelf worn, shoddy, second-handed, but the best goods direct from the mills and manufacturers.

For the reason I stated above, we are going to continue this sale one week, positively closing October 8, after which time the goods will take their former prices. Space will not admit of a protracted list of prices, but we invite you to look to your best interest and realize the benefits to be derived in purchasing your needs before the end of this SALE.

It Wouldn't Do at This Day

Figuratively speaking, a man started on a long journey one time, and called three trusted servants, or slaves, and turned over his ready cash, giving to each according to his ability to manage the money. They understood that the master would return some time and demand an accounting.

Two got busy and turned that money about as but few financial jugglers could do at this day, even with a stock market to buck.

The third got a case of cold feet and buried the money intrusted to him.

What a different story would be told if such were to happen now.

Picture a Morgan, a Rockefeller or Vanderbilt sailing for Europe, and turning over their cash to the office force, and demanding that they get busy and keep that money making a good profit. Imagine the head bookkeeper telephoning an order to a broker to buy a thousand shares of United States Steel, common, and the other man going in for mining stocks, or railroad bonds.

When the boss got back from his trip abroad, he might find his way to the office, but he might not. The force might all be at the races, the ball game, or out on a private yacht. They might be millionaires in their own name, or they might have (ten to one they would have) blown in the pile the old man left and forged his name to a batch of notes to cover the shortage. The third man, he who was afraid to invest his hard master's money, probably would have deposited it in a safety deposit vault, and spent the time running the boss' automobile all over town, and wearing out his second-hand clothes.

Instead of there being a well-dressed, good-and-faithful commendation, the chances are he would have telephoned for a policeman and had the whole kit and biling in the lock-up before he unpacked his steamer trunk.

Servants, or slaves, were given more liberty with a man's fortune in the olden days than would be safe to give now. They had better training, probably, and there might have been fewer temptations for speculation. Mighty few men of this day and time would turn their money over to the hired man, and invite him to jump on the stock exchange and clean it up by the time he returned, and the man with the one talent would receive more praise for being able to keep the wad placed in his care.

The Dothan Eagle jokes Birmingham on its great census figures and says if Dothan had annexed everything within ten miles it, too, would show a great increase. Birmingham didn't take in anything but looks away on a night. In fact, Birmingham did not take in all that property belonged in, but the great figures speak for themselves, and all kinds of jokes are received and filed.—Birmingham Ledger.

Jonesboro, a suburb of Bessemer, is to vote on whether it shall be swallowed by Bessemer and become a part of the Marvel City, and the Birmingham News encourages the merger, thinking that when Birmingham gets ready to swallow some more small towns, that it can take Bessemer with Jonesboro, at one gulp. Let the small snake swallow the smaller one, and then the big one will only have to lick one snake to swallow both. With all of Birmingham's appetite for suburban towns, we like her just the same, for her digestion seems good. Unless Montgomery gets a move on her during the next few years, we hate to think what might be her fate, if the Birmingham annexing idea travels south.

About once a week, one of the census clerks in the enumerating department at Washington, D. C., rubs his eyes, picks up some papers and figures a little, and then we all hear of four more cities that have grown greatly in ten years. At no time has the census clerk, we say clerk, for it seems that there is but one on the job—at no time has he given us a report of over half a dozen cities at one time. We suppose the poor fellow then walks down the avenue, and around the White House grounds, to see if he can get a glimpse of President Taft, and then knocks off till the next day at 11 o'clock.

Gen. Leonard Wood is getting his name in the papers again by advocating a military education for all boys. He would want them all to spend a certain time in the service, so that when we have some other nation to swoop down upon us without warning, that we would be able to lick the stuff out of them by reason of the fact that we had a lot of trained soldiers, who could shoot straight. We have thousands of citizens of this country now who jumped Germany before they got old enough to do military duty. Lots of folks don't want to be bothered with such things, when there is so many other things to be done.

"On the Devil and Tom Walker"

We don't have a habit of saying that. In fact, we believe it is the first time we have used the expression in years. We only use it this time to see how it looks in print. Another thing; we want some of the sages to tell us about the origin of such a cuss word. We want to know if Tom Walker ever associated with the devil enough to have his name used in the same breath with his satanic majesty's given name.

Dr. Cook has been discovered in London, and not in disguise, either. He claims that he sat in the grand stand and witnessed the funeral procession of King Edward, and that he was in the audience when Lieutenant Peary made a lecture about how he found the north pole. He has been traveling extensively of late, and thinks that he will yet live to convince the world that he found a north pole, whether it was the right one or not.

It is greatly feared in some quarters that the extreme beauty of Vivian M. Lewis, the Republican opponent of Woodrow Wilson for governor of New Jersey, will queer the whole scheme, but it is also further stated that many of the most beautiful senators and congressmen that were ever assembled at Washington, have returned home to stay, because of the insurgent wave.

A Pennsylvania paper comments upon the fact that a Kentucky district is going to send Caleb Powers to congress, to which the Courier-Journal replies, that in Kentucky, the district sends the man, while in Pennsylvania the steel trust picks out the man and sends him.

While the council was considering so many other things of moment the other night, we fear they overlooked the opportunity of getting themselves thanked generously by taking up that gas engine exhaust at the old mill. It is still making its regular explosions varied by an occasional tick, tick, masketry.

The census reports will do for the South what the South has not been trying very hard to do for herself. It will show that every southern city has grown phenomenally, and it will point the finger this way, where so many fingers have been pointing west for a couple of decades.

Some of the Georgians are trying to shut Tom Watson's mouth by excluding his Weekly Jeffersonian from the mails. Poor consolation then, for he has another, and if both are stopped, he could start still another.

John A. Dix, the Democratic leader in New York, may be all right, but he ought to have suppressed that picture they made of him while he was watching the aeroplane race.

It shows some kind of a lack of checking system when a great railroad company like the L. C. lets its employees fleece it for $2,000,000.

The council got through a resolution the other night deploring the blind tiger situation, thus going on record, to a man, as opposing them.

Nine times out of ten when you become disgusted at thinking of the snap the other fellow has, you would quit the job before breakfast if you knew the ups and downs of it.

The men who fought good roads in this county now see that they are doing good. They are worth all they cost, and more, to any county.

If Birmingham is as big as the census enumerators say it is, we all ought to go up to the fair next week and see about it.

It is no fun to have the census taken every ten years if nine of those are to be taken in adding up the totals.

A man never gets too big for his job till he shows that he is capable of holding down better ones.

LARYNGITIS.

A Disorder That Attacks All Ages and Conditions of People.

Laryngitis is an inflammation of the mucous membrane which lines the larynx, a disorder which attacks all ages and conditions of people, but is likely to be more serious in the case of children than in that of adults.

In grownup people an attack of acute laryngitis is rarely fatal, although its symptoms, which include breathlessness and sometimes complete loss of voice, often give rise to much alarm. In children the passages are narrower, and they are less able to throw off the secretions, with the result that an attack of laryngitis may become croupous in character and consequently dangerous to life.

When a child develops a tendency to attacks of laryngitis a thorough examination of the air passages should be made by a specialist in throat disorders, and in most cases some contraction or chronic inflammation will be found which calls for correction. The importance of this will be recognized when it is understood by parents that one attack predisposes to others until the unfortunate child becomes the victim of so-called croup with the least exposure or indiscretion, and all the time the trouble may be caused by the mouth breathing, which keeps the throat and all the air passages in a state of irritation and delicacy.

An attack of acute laryngitis is one predisposed to it may be brought on in various ways. Sitting with wet feet will often do the mischief. So will inhaling dust or gas, or getting too cold, or going too long without food, or, in short, doing anything or permitting anything that serves to depress the general vitality, for no organ of the body resents any insult offered to the general system more thoroughly than does an irritable throat.

In the case of adults the trouble is often caused by overuse of the voice. This form is seen in the case of what is known as "clergyman's sore throat," but it is not necessary to be a clergyman to have it, and the average college student the day after a boat race may be trusted to have acquired a fair case of laryngitis. Sometimes the voice is only hoarse or husky, but in severe cases it may be completely gone, owing to the local thickening and congestion of the parts.

The treatment of this disease is both general and local. Local applications are first for the thorough cleansing of the affected parts. After that has been accomplished sedative and astringent remedies are applied. This treatment should always be given by the physician.—Youth's Companion.

Her Opening.

The courting of the Widow Healy by Terence Corcoran was a tedious affair to every one in Magraw place, most of all to the widow herself, who tried various expedients to assist her timid admirer.

"I'm thinking I might go for a sojer," Terence announced one night when his fancy had been stirred by a newspaper account of a military pageant. "I'm not so old but I could do it. I was wanst in a school regiment!"

"You go for a sojer!" cried the Widow Healy in mingled scorn and alarm. "A man that calls on a lone widow for two years and more, wid-out pluck enough to spake his mind, hasn't the makings of a drummer boy in him."

The Hours of the Day.

The ancient Egyptians divided the day and night into twelve hours each, a custom adopted by the Jews and Greeks probably from the Babylonians. The day was first divided into hours in Rome by L. Papirius Cursor, who about B. C. 293 erected a sundial in the temple of Quirinus. Prior to the invention of water clocks (158 B. C.) the time was called at Rome by public criers. In England in early times the measurement of time was uncertain. One expedient was by wax candles, three inches burning an hour and six wax candles burning twenty-four hours, or a day.—New York American.

PENSACOLA A SPOT OF BEAUTY AND ROMANCE.

Nowhere Else In All Picturesque and Historic Florida Can More Be Offered For the Visitor to Admire and to Wonder At—Opportunity For Visitors to Interstate Fair, Nov. 7 to 12.

Pensacola, Florida's deep water city, situated on the deepest, broadest and deepest bay on the gulf of Mexico—a city so rich in history and tradition, with its quaint old Spanish customs—has more to offer for the sightseer and the visitor of a few days than any other city in all the great state of Florida, a state so rich in attractions.

People from the adjoining counties, the neighboring states as well as those from the faraway north, should remember this when contemplating a visit to the city at the time of the great interstate fair, Nov. 7 to 12, inclusive. The fair itself comes at the most delightful time of all the year to make a visit to the historic town that made history under the flags of five nations and thirteen times changed its flag.

First may be mentioned the bay itself. No prettier body of water can be found on the entire gulf coast. It is a magnificent inland sea, entirely landlocked and big enough to afford a safe anchorage for the combined navies of the world. Yet so near is the harbor bar to the city that one can stand on the streets and see the incoming and outgoing vessels far beyond Santa Rosa Island, which forms the dividing line between bay and open sea.

The island is one of the beauty spots of nature. It is only a hundred yards or so wide and many miles long. Restaurants and bathing houses as well as countless places of amusement have been erected here for the pleasure of visitors. It costs only a few cents to go to the island and return.

Surf Bathing.

The surf bathing at Pensacola is an old thing with the residents, who follow it all the year round, and yet they never tire of its glories. Perhaps nowhere else in the southern waters do the waves and the surf take on so rich a coloring, and nowhere does the water maintain such an even temperature. Thousands of people, living perhaps within a hundred miles or even a great deal less of the city, have never availed themselves of the opportunity to try this beautiful surf. Many more come and go to Pensacola periodically on business, yet have never found time to visit the bay, the island, the lighthouse, the navy yard, the United States fort, the old ruined Spanish forts, the historic old cemetery and scores of other things of great beauty and great traditional and historical interest.

The great interstate fair, lasting, as it does, an entire week, will afford a after the Spanish regained the city they gave it this name.

Pensacola has more small parks and squares perhaps than any other city of its size in the Union. It has a splendid theater and a number of smaller ones, all of which will be in full blast during the big interstate fair, and the scenes of commercial activity will be exceedingly interesting to those who do not live in a deep water town. The harbor is fairly lined with fishing smacks operated by three large firms, and these ply the waters of the gulf for the famous red snapper. At any time fishermen may be seen unloading their catches at the docks and storing them away on ice.

Great Ocean Traffic.

Pensacola is the only town in southern waters where the very largest ocean going steamers may come directly alongside the docks and load and unload cargoes. It is an interesting sight to see immense quantities of lumber and cotton loaded and commodities of all description being discharged.

Safe opportunity for the thousands of visitors to take in these beautiful, picturesque and romantic spots and yet have plenty of time to take in all the interesting things about the big fair and the hundreds of Midway attractions as well.

Old Fort Pickens is well worth a trip to Pensacola to see to those who are interested in romantic and historic spots. It was built on Santa Rosa Island by the United States government in 1835 and was the only fort in the south that remained in the hands of the Federal government throughout the war.

Now Him First.
About the year 1707 William Penn became heavily involved in a lawsuit, and the author of a biography, entitled "Quaker and Courtier," says that he was greatly injured—under the laws of the day—by being arrested. Many noble persons were in the same plight, and no other, it is believed, resorted to Penn's expedient in meeting the situation.

In the door of his London house he had a peeping hole made, through which he could see any person who came to him. A creditor one day sat in his name and, having been made to wait more than a reasonable time, knocked for the servant and asked him:

"Will not your master see me?"
"Friend, he has seen thee," replied the servant calmly, "and does not like the looks of thee."

Applying the Rule.
After Sunday school little Ned and his younger cousin, Horton, were permitted to play in the yard on condition that they would be very good and quiet. They had not been out long when Ned's mother heard loud screams. Upon investigating the cause she found her small son sitting on his cousin, pounding him vigorously in spite of Horton's pitiful wails.

"Well, mamma," Ned exclaimed, "I wanted to teach him the Golden Rule, and he said he wouldn't learn it."—Detroit Free Press.

Confusions in Class.
Scene—A Sunday school. Discovers—A class of damsels, biting at their pencils, and a teacher at her desk, endeavoring to fill in the hour prescribed for her lesson.

An ideal
"Now, girls, I want you all to take pencil and paper and to write down the names of your favorite poets."

A pause, interrupted by a piping note:
"Please, teacher, are we to write of Christian or the surnames?"—London Scraps.

We carry a large stock from two of the largest wall paper manufacturers in the United States. Our prices will please you. Smith's Paper Store

Vanities.
The doorbell of the Vanities' house rang at about 8 o'clock one night, and Mrs. Vanity said excitedly to her husband:

"There, Charles, I know that's the furniture van coming with the new bedroom suit we bought today, and if it is I just want to receive it, that's all."

"Why not?" asked Mr. Vanity.
"Why not?" replied Mrs. Vanity. "Do you think I'm going to pay £20 for a suit and then have it sent out here after dark so that none of the neighbors can see it when it's brought in? Not if I know it."—London Telegraph

Easy Enough.
Parents as well as teachers have sometimes to run the gantlet of awkward questions.

"Father," said little Tommy one day, "what is an equinox?"

Father—Why—er—it is—ahem! For goodness' sake, Tommy, don't you know anything about mythology at all? An equinox was a fabled animal—half horse, half cow. Its name was derived from the words "equine" and "ox." It does seem as if these public schools don't teach children anything nowadays.—Strand Magazine.

Wood For Matches.
It is not to be assumed that by reason of the smallness of matches the makers ever utilize scraps or bits of wood left over. The contrary is the case. Matches are not by-products. Any wood rejected by the match machine goes to the by-product establishment, and of these by-products of the match business may be mentioned some, such as doors and cashes, that in some instances form an industry as important as the match industry itself.—Harper's.

Don't forget us when you want engraved cards. Our prices are right. Strickland Brothers

Very Fine.
She was a rich man's daughter, she wore her hair in a net, and she preferred love in a pectoral way.

"My love," he whispered, "you hold first 'place' in my heart." Although I flounder about in expressing myself, my 'sole' wish is that you will save me from becoming a 'rabbed' old bachelor. I shall stick to you closer than a 'limpet,' from you a 'wink'll' be the road to guide me. Together we will 'skate' over life's 'rocks,' and when I look at your hand beside me I shall say to myself, 'Fortune was mine when I put "herring" there!'"

And then the lady dropped her eyes in sweet confusion and murmured:

"Pass the salt!"—London Scraps.

Human Lives.
There is a story of an old time king who commanded that a palace be built for him to the sound of music. And richly was his wisdom rewarded, for when the palace was done it was found to be the most perfectly constructed and beautiful in the world. The builders had unconsciously wrought the music into their work and made it a finer kind of work than had been known before. So it is with human lives. They are infinitely better built when the builders have something to inspire and uplift them, something to kindle mind and soul and lift them above petty and commonplace thoughts and feelings.—Selected.

NEGRO MAN IS OUT IN BACK COTTON FOURTEEN CENTS

Yesterday afternoon in a difficult matter pertaining to the duties of the workmen. The men went together and while they were clinched, Lyhart drew his knife and inflicted several dangerous stabs in the other negro's back.

The wounded negro ran off a few feet, but was caught by other workmen and given medical attention. Lyhart received a slight bruise on the hand during the encounter.

THE ALABAMA EXPOSITION

The attractions which will be presented at the Alabama Agricultural Association October 19th to 28th in Montgomery, are a better selection and a more wholesome kind than probably ever secured for any state fair in any country. The policy of the management has been not to accept the shows in a bunch, but to go carefully over the list and make thorough inspection and take only such as promised to be clean and entertaining. There shows are to be arranged along a beautiful street which will be called the "Esplanade," and the fronts are expected not only to be attractive as advertising, but decidedly artistic. In other words, some shows have been presented that would not stand the test of close inspection, though they have been very few. This time no such thing will occur, and every attraction that has not in it the elements of the highest and best have been excluded.

As an instance of this, Mr. Lasseter, director of amusements, who has made several trips to Nashville, Knoxville and other points, refused two good shows which he wanted because to contract for these he had to take a third which he did not want. It is sometimes so that these attractions are in a group, and to get one or two, all must be taken. It has been a sort of trust idea that the 1910 Exposition officials have hustled for the entertainment and amusement of the people who will be here during the dates mentioned.

"We do not propose to allow anything on the ground which is not of a character permissible for everybody to see, and of a nature that ranks high as an entertaining feature. Our purpose is to give a lot of mighty good shows of the very best sort, and the people of Alabama who come here will find this so," concluded Mr. Lasseter.

The program for this department includes so far, and it is not yet complete, wild animals, dog and pony shows, minstrels, a spook show, oriental family in native costumes and customs, an exhibition of large snakes, ferris wheels, merry-go-rounds and other things of like nature. People are inclined to laugh sometimes about snakes as part of an exhibition, said Mr. Lasseter, "but we are going to give them a surprise in our snake show this year. Any fellow who has looked a little over time upon the Oh-be-joyful, will have to hold himself in check or he may imagine a whole lot of things before he gets thru with this bunch of crawlers.

Prospects look bright to the Houston county farmers who have been holding their cotton for fourteen cents, and even good to the fifteen-cent holders, for it is steadily advancing.

It has been advancing for several days and today it jumped to fourteen cents, which is a fairly good rise over the local offer of yesterday.
